

Grief counselling referrals

Grief is the normal process of reacting to a loss. The loss may be physical such as a death, social such as divorce, or occupational such as a job or livelihood. Emotional reactions of grief can include anger, guilt, anxiety, sadness, and despair. It is the normal, healthy process of coping with the separation from something very important or significant in our lives. The journey of grief can be frightening, painful and lonely. It can be distressing and it is a journey which can be different for every person. Each person's grief is unique and each person will grieve in a way which is right for them. The following are some referrals that may be helpful. Please contact Epilepsy Queensland on the numbers below for further assistance.
